Dear Mr. Fraps,
Dear Mr. Hartling,

The 11th International Conference on Electroanalytical Chemistry (ESEAC2006) held from 11th-15th June 2006 in Bordeaux attracted over 300 scientists from 34 different countries. For the traditional Gala dinner in the medieval castle "Château de Vayres" on Wednesday evening we were initially looking for some "special event" that would entertain the participants for approximately one hour between aperitif and dinner.

It is now clear that our choice to offer your "Metamagicum" show to the conference participants was definitively an excellent one. Socks disappearing in the time-space continuum, virtual monkeys crossing the stage, self-refilling soda cans based on the relativity theory, no matter what kind of tricks, you succeeded in combining perfectly high level entertainment with scientific aspects. All participants agreed that your show was the high light of this wonderful summer evening. Since the end of the conference I've been asked many times by international colleagues whether I could send them your references because they are planning to integrate your show in the frame of conferences/seminars that they have to organize. There is no doubt that your show is an enrichment for all kind of events and I strongly recommend "Metamagicum" to all organizers wishing to add a magic accent to their conference or seminar.

With best regards
